Walking Tour of La Veta #6

At the end of Main Street is an appropriately named restaurant. It looks like the kind of hometown place you want to go. The only problem is the winter hours.

Since I took the first picture on Friday, I guess the actual hours are known well enough that the accuracy of the sign is not really important. Actually, isn't that what a small town is all about?

Check out the Contest on the right and join me next time we tape in La Veta, Colorado.
