

Daily Blog

Category: Just for Fun

Published: Sunday, 21 December 2014 23:52

The Disappearing art of making scissors by hand

The next time you gasp as the price of all metal scissors, think about the years of training, skill, and craftsmanship it takes to make a pair. Meet Eric, one of the last remaining scissors makers in Sheffield, England. Eric began making scissors in 1958. At one time there were hundreds of factories employing 40,000 workers. Today there are less than a dozen craftsmen working to keep this ancient tradition alive.

To visit their website: <http://www.ernestwright.co.uk/>