

to put with
to get to look
to see
to do
to go
to be
to have
to do
to go
to be
to have

sprout

To cause to sprout, the earl will sprout the seed. To shoot, as the seed of a plant to germinate to push out new shoots, hence to grow like shoots of plants. To ripen of seedlings to sprout potatoes. The shoot of a plant a shoot from the seed from the stump, or from the spot or tubes of a plant or tree, more rarely a shoot from the stem of a plant, or the end of a branch.

plant

To cause to sprout, as the earl will sprout the seed. To shoot, as the seed of a plant to germinate to push out new shoots, hence to grow like shoots of plants. To ripen of seedlings as in which contains the shoot of a plant, a shoot from the seed from the stump or from the spot or tubes of a plant or tree.

to bring up or bring that it contains to an which is hoped for, an object of hope. To desire which is based in the probability or prospect to look forward to as a thing desirable with the ex-claiming it, to cherish hopes of. One who, or it hope, formulates ground of expectation, or ground. To place confidence, to trust, with regard to good.

grow

To increase in size by a natural and organic pro-cess, by the gradual accretions of new mat-ter, being regular, and in animals and vegetable organs. To increase in any way, to become large, to be augmented to advance to a stand to spring up and come to maturity in a natural